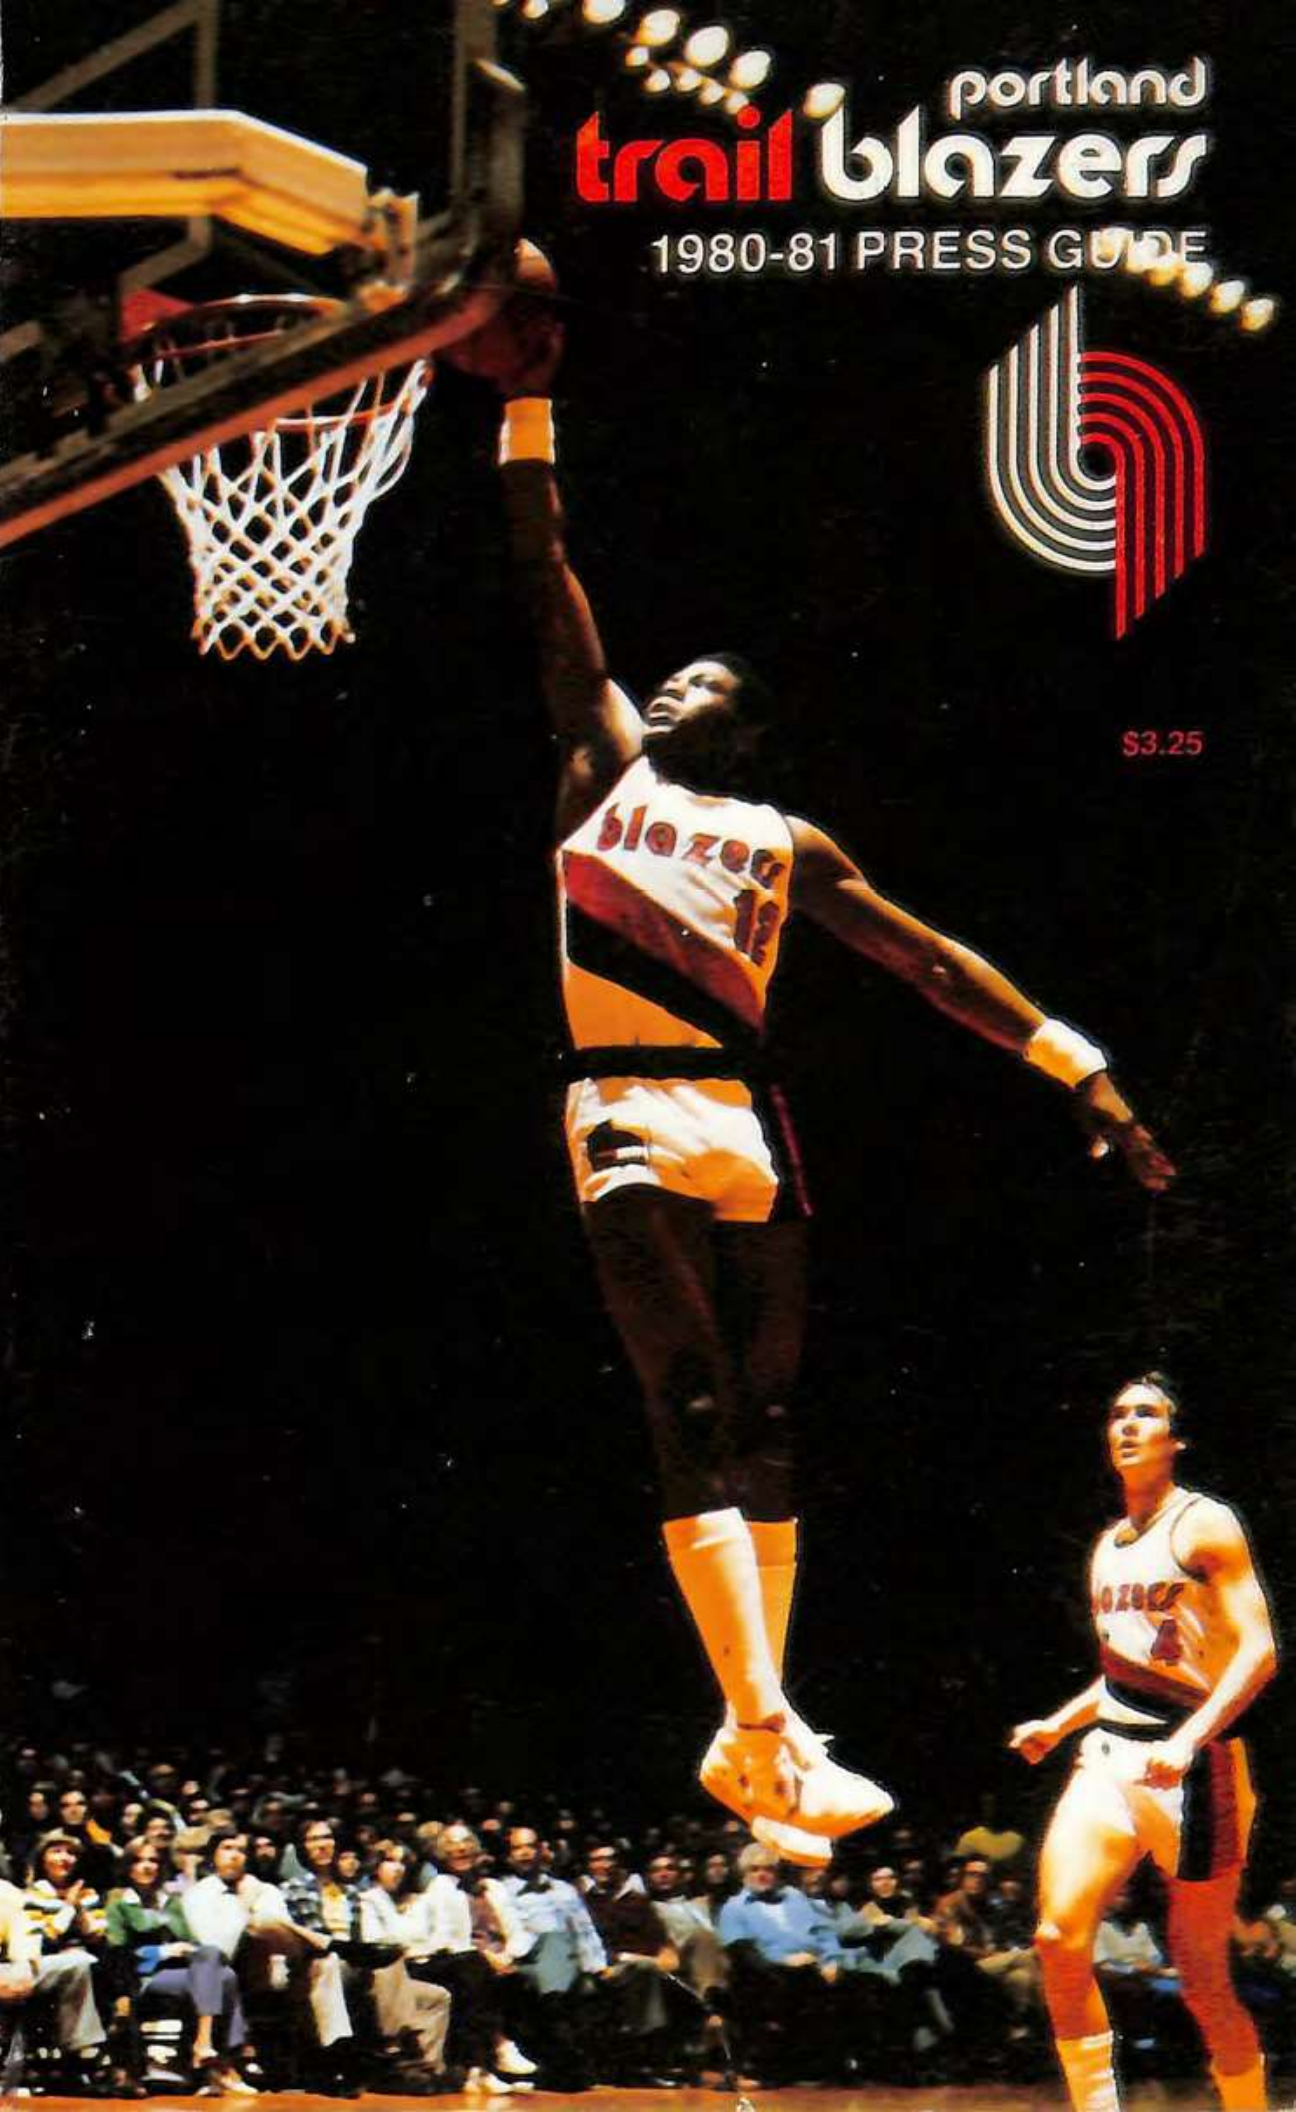
1980-81 PRESS GUIDE

$3.25



You're proud of who you are, and you're not afraid to show it.

Monte Carlo is your car.

Even the most casual glance tells you the new Monte Carlo is a personal car as individual as you. But keep in mind it's a car engineered to exist in a world of hard facts.

Standard for 1981 is the new Computer Command Control system that constantly monitors engine performance. The entire underbody is sprayed with undercoatings and the body literally bathed with rust-resistant primers.

A 3.8 Liter turbocharged V6 is available. And its standard, responsive 3.8 Liter V6 offers 19 EPA estimated MPG, 26 highway.*

Power steering and brakes, automatic transmission, and a tasteful, comfortable, superbly organized interior are also standard.

But perhaps the most important thing to keep in mind is that Monte Carlo for 1981 comes to you for the refreshingly affordable price of a Chevrolet.

Buy or lease it from your Chevrolet dealer. And express the pride you have in yourself.

Remember: Compare* the "estimated MPG" to the "estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions, and trip length. Actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy. Monte Carlo is equipped with GM-built engines produced by various divisions. See your dealer for details.

Introducing 1981 Monte Carlo.

A matter of personal pride.

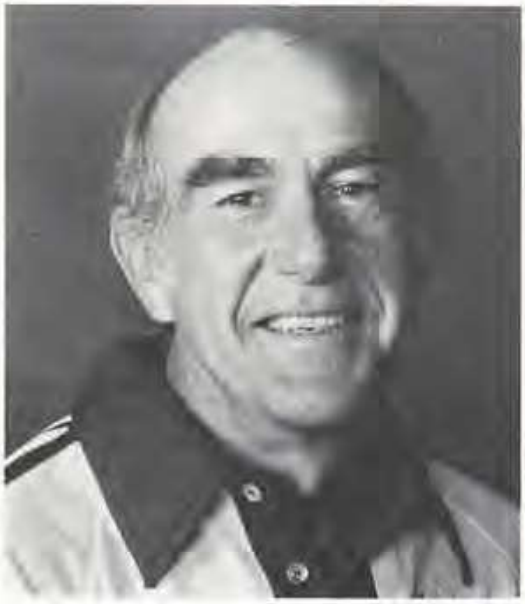
JACK RAMSAY



The 1980-81 season will be Jack Ramsay's fifth as coach of the Portland Trail Blazers.

In 1976-77, Ramsay guided the Blazers to the world's championship.

In 1977-78, he led Portland to the best regular-season record in the National Basketball Association.

Yet even more impressive, perhaps, is that Portland has made the playoffs in all four of the Ramsay years in the Rose City.

Only four other NBA teams—Philadelphia, Los Angeles, San Antonio and Washington—can make that statement.

And these playoff berths were won with teams that during the last two seasons were just about demolished by injuries.

Portland players last season, for example, missed 311 games because of injuries—by far the highest total in the NBA.

In his four years with Portland, Ramsay's clubs have won 190 games.

That's a record topped by only Philadelphia (211, Los Angeles (205) and Seattle (195). Rounding out the top eight were Phoenix (188), San Antonio (185), Washington (185) and Denver (175).

Again, this was accomplished with injury-riddled quintets the past two campaigns.

With Ramsay as coach, Portland teams have won 190 and lost 138 for a winning percentage of 58 per cent.

Ramsay is on another string.

In his last seven seasons—three at Buffalo and four at Portland—his teams have won 327 and lost 247.

That's the best coaching record in the NBA over that stretch. Closest challengers are Al Attles and Dick Motta.

In 12 NBA seasons—four with Philadelphia, four with Buffalo and four with Portland—Ramsay's teams have won 522 and lost 462.

He is one of only five coaches in NBA history to win 500 or more games.

Red Auerbach leads with 938, Red Holzman is second with 613, Dick Motta is third with 541, Ramsay is fourth with 522 and Gene Shue is fifth with 515.

Looking ahead to 1980-81, Ramsay emphasized a toughening of Portland's defense.

"We have to tighten our defense," he said. "The fact that we gave up the second-fewest points didn't necessarily mean that we were the second-best defensive team. It meant in some cases that we were having so much trouble with our offense, it just took us a long time to get a shot. I don't think our defense was bad, but I don't think it was great."

"We can play a lot better defense," he says. "A lot of that is not only physical ability of the players, but getting a feel for how the whole team plays."

HARRY GLICKMAN

The Portland Trail Blazers will open their 1979-80 campaign looking back on 101 consecutive sellouts in regular-season and playoff games.

Or perhaps that should be phrased looking ahead to and hoping for more.

At any rate, it's a tribute to the man most responsible for bringing the first major league professional sport to Portland, to Harry Glickman, executive vice president and general manager of the Trail Blazers.

It was in the fall of 1970 when the Trail Blazers first took the court for NBA action.

And that was when a Sports Illustrated reporter asked Glickman at a luncheon, "What do you think you know about basketball?"

"I don't think I know anything about basketball," said Glickman. "I think I know how to sell tickets, to put people in seats."

That he has done!

Glickman actually started looking for an NBA team in Portland in the 1950s.

The prospects were not bright at the time and Glickman, instead, wound up organizing the Portland Buckaroos of the old Western Hockey League.

The Buckaroos were a smash hit, both on the ice and at the box office.

In the decade of the '60s, the Buckaroos finished first seven times and second twice in one nine-season stretch.

And they smashed every attendance record in professional hockey outside the then tightly-knit six-team National Hockey League.

But Glickman never forgot about the NBA.

In January of 1970 he went to league meetings in Philadelphia with backing for a franchise.

But he found the ground rules had changed and the ante had been increased.

And he came back to Portland empty-handed.

But a month later, with new financial backing, the Portland franchise was born at a meeting in Los Angeles.

Glickman's background is all Oregon.

He was born in Portland and attended Lincoln High School where he played varsity basketball. If pressed, he will remind you that in one game he hit on all five shots from the floor.

Glickman was graduated in 1948 from University of Oregon, where he served as the school's publicity director in the Cotton Bowl days of Norm Van Brocklin, still one of Glickman's close friends.

Glickman first tried to be a sports writer. But there were no openings in Portland.

He moved into promotion, chiefly in boxing and professional football and in such sidelines as the Harlem Globetrotters.

In the 1950s and '60s, Glickman made Portland the professional football capital of the nation — outside, of course, National Football League cities.

Exhibitions in Portland drew an average of better than 25,000 a game in an era when games in other cities frequently were in the 5,000 to 10,000 range.

The Globetrotters almost always sold out in Portland.

And Glickman was active in post-World War II boxing when virtually every all-time attendance and gate record was set in the state of Oregon.

Glickman and his wife, Joanne, have two daughters, Lynn and Jennifer, and a son, Marshall.

STU INMAN

In only one season has the National Basketball Association draft failed to produce a player who made it with the Portland Trail Blazers.

The lone exception was 1973, the year of a major trade of draft choices to Cleveland for veterans Rick Roberson and John Johnson.

Four draft choices survived with the Blazers in both 1970 and 1971 and five in 1972. There were three in 1974, two in 1975, two in 1976, two in 1977, three in 1978 and one in 1979.

It all speaks highly of the homework done by Stuart K. Inman, Portland's vice president in charge of player personnel.

A man who is responsible for the draft of both Bob Gross and Lionel Hollins in one season and for Mychal Thompson, Ron Brewer and Clemon Johnson in another season goes to the head of the class.

It is not surprising that the training camp roster of the 1980-81 Trail Blazers included nine draft choices.

Or that the world champions of 1977 had eight draft choices, two free agents, one player acquired in a trade and only one outright purchase.

Inman, who grew up in the Bay Area and never lets you forget it (sorry, Stu), is a Trail Blazer original.

And almost by accident.

When an NBA franchise was granted to Portland in Februrary of 1970, there were only a couple of months to put together the club's first draft and the college season was almost over.

Inman came highly recommended and signed on, really as a temporary scout.

Inman didn't get much sleep for a few months but his first draft choice was Geoff Petrie of Princeton who wound up sharing Rookie of the Year honors in the NBA with Dave Cowens from Boston.

Two years later Inman was a vice president of the club. And he's still around.

Inman is a 1950 graduate of San Jose State, where he played a bit of basketball as a 6-5 center. In fact, he's still the school's all-time scoring champion — a remarkable accomplishment considering that scores were much lower in that era.

The Spartans were pretty tough, too, in Inman's undergraduate days, posting records of 19-9, 23-9, 22-12 and 21-7 for an overall record of 85-37.

Inman is a member of the school's Sports Hall of Fame.

But it should not be overlooked that Inman still holds the all-time San Jose State record for personal fouls in a career.

And he's an old hand at international coaching clinics, having conducted them virtually all over the world.

Inman and his wife, Elinor, have four daughters — Nancy, Sandy, Janice and Carol — and a son, David.

BUCKY BUCKWALTER

Morris (Bucky) Buckwalter now is in his second season as assistant coach of the Portland Trail Blazers.

When he was named last season to replace Jack McKinney, Buckwalter was no stranger to the Blazer organization. He had scouted for the club for three seasons.

He was no stranger to coaching. After eight years as an assistant at University of Utah (where he had starred as a player), Buckwalter was head coach for five seasons at Seattle University where his clubs won 79 and lost 49 for a .617 record.

He was no stranger to professional basketball.

Bucky had been an assistant coach, head coach and assistant general manager with the Seattle SuperSonics, coached the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association and coached Fresno of the Western Basketball Association.

And Buckwalter certainly was no stranger to Oregon.

With the LaGrande Tigers of Oregon's Blue Mountain Conference, 6-2 forward Buckwalter won All Star honors in the 1952 state tournament won by Lincoln High's team with seven-foot center Wade (Swede) Halbrook, who went on to star at Oregon State.

Buckwalter jokes that Coach Jack Ramsay was impressed by his knowledge of defense "because I held Halbrook to 40 points, even though we lost."

Of his Portland duties, Buckwalter says, "I do scouting, help with the pre-game prepapration, primarily. I may recommend an approach to a particular game based on what I've seen scouting. I'll be with the team most of the time bust most of my work is in pre-game preparation."

Buckwalter would consider a return to a head coaching post but says, "Right now I want to do the best job I can as an assistant, learn from Coach Ramsay."

RON CULP

The past couple of seasons have been nothing but bed of roses for Ron Culp, trainer of the Portland Trail Blazers.

Well, there may have been a couple of thorns . . .

Such as those 311 games Portland players missed with injuries last season . . .

Such as phone calls at midnight . . . and 2 in the morning . . . and 4 in the morning . . . and 6 in the morning . . .

Such as transporting the sick and the wounded to hospitals at all hours of the night in all ports of call . . .

Culp in the past few years has held more press conferences than the coach or general manager . . .

"I would say he is day to day" . . . "He'll be out a minumum of four weeks" . . . "Very doubtful for action tonight are" . . . "The screws were inserted this morning" . . . "The screws were removed this morning" . . .

Culp, with a soft snarl, takes it in stride. After all, he's a veteran. This is his 11th National Basketball Association season.

In fact, Culp and the Trail Blazers took the Portland court in 1970 at exactly the same time. Except then he was trainer for the Cleveland Cavaliers. This is his fifth season with Portland.

He continues as a member of a select group of six from 1970 who continue to be NBA trainers today.

Joe O'Toole still is with Atlanta, Dick D'Olivia with Golden State, Al Domenico with Philadelphia and Joe Proski with Phoenix.

Jack Curran was with the Seattle SuperSonics in 1970-71 and now is with the Los Angeles Lakers.

Culp is a 1968 graduate of Bowling Green State University in Ohio, earned a master's degree at the same school and has done graduate work on physical therapy at Case Western Reserve University.

His wife, Marilyn, works for the district attorney's office in Portland.

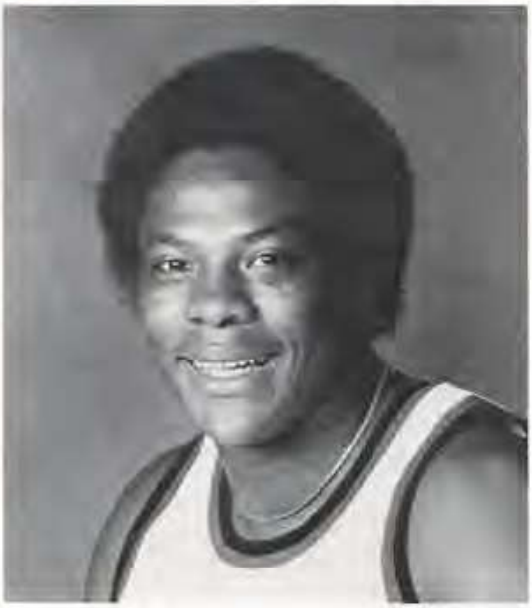
BILLY RAY BATES



Billy Ray Bates
Guard, No. 12
6'4", 210 lbs.
Born 5-31-56, Goodman, Miss.
High School, McAdams
College: Kentucky State '78
Residence: Koscivsko, Miss.

Coach Jack Ramsay of the Portland Trail Blazers mulls it over about Billy Ray Bates and comes up with this:

I don't know what Billy's full potential is. His potential is like Mount St. Helens. It's bubbling and agitating under the skin of his body, waiting to erupt."

"He has demonstrated the ability to pass in traffic," says Ramsay. "He has shown, on occasion, the ability to play very good defense. He can go to the basket and he can shoot it — long, medium or short. It's up to me, really, to get all of that out of him."

For the record, Billy Ray Bates is a 24-year-old 6-4 guard from Kentucky State who enjoys playing basketball.

That's why in six months last season — February through July — he played in four leagues. That's four leagues, not four teams.

Count 'em . . . National Basketball Association . . . Continental Basketball Association . . Philadelphia's Charles Baker League . . . Southern California Summer Pro League . . .

Bates was drafted by Houston in 1978 and was rejected . . . he played briefly with Philadelphia in the fall of 1979 and was rejected . . . he signed with Portland as a free agent in February of 1980 . . .

In 16 regular-season games with the Blazers, he averaged 11.3 points a game with limited playing time . . . for example, he scored 26 points in 20 minutes against Chicago . . . 20 points in 22 minutes against Milwaukee . . . 20 points in 22 minutes against Phoenix . . .

In the playoffs, Bates exploded. He averaged 25 points a game, highest playoff average in Portland history, while shooting .525 from the floor.

Bates probably is the first free agent in National Basketball Association history to be named the league's Player of the Week in his first month in the circuit.

In the Los Angeles Summer League in 1980, Bates led Portland in scoring with 19.7 points a game, shot .514 from the floor and was a first All Star Selection.

Teammate Ron Brewer of the Blazers characterized Bates this way:

"With him on the floor, you tend to get a lot of open shots. When he has his hands on the ball, things happen. He's what I call a miniature Darryl Dawkins."

"He does all those artistic dunks and that pumps us up," said Brewer. "We always go to Billy Ray first in layup drills and that gets the fans ready. It's not just a routine drill after that because everybody is watching us."

At Kentucky State, Bates was the team's leading scorer in 1976-77 with a 22.9 average and in 1977-78 with a 22.8 average . . . he led his team in shooting with .550 as a junior and .601 as a senior . . . and he was the school's top rebounder both seasons with a 10.5 average in '76-'77 and an 8.2 average in '77-'78.

He averaged 27.5 points a game as a rookie and 26.6 points a game in his second season with the Maine Lumberjacks.

Of his second NBA season, Bates says simply:

"I gotta come out prepared to accept more responsibility, to sustain what I got and make myself better for me and the good people in Portland who come out to watch us."

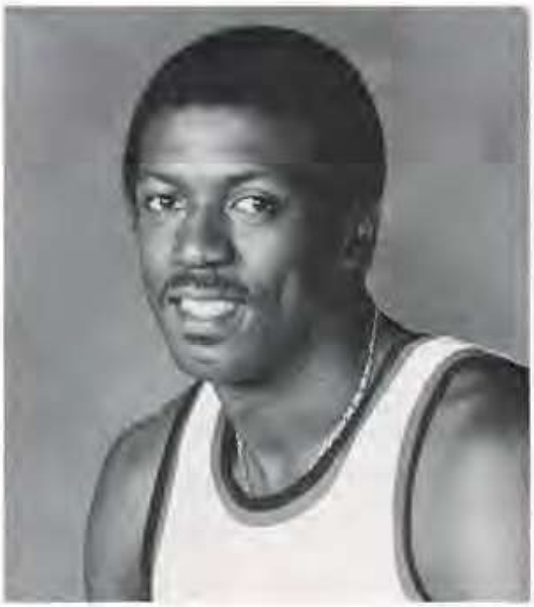
JIM BREWER



Jim Brewer
Forward, No. 52, 6'9", 220 lbs.
Born Dec. 3, 1951, Maywood, IL
College, Minnesota '73

No one ever can take it away from Jim Brewer, the 6-9 forward of the Portland Trail Blazers.

In 1980 the seven-season professional posted the most accurate shooting mark in the history of a National Basketball Association playoff "season."

Try 10 for 10 from the floor. That was Brewer's record in three playoff tests against the Seattle SuperSonics. And that's perfection.

The post-season burst capped a fine season for the University of Minnesota product who was signed by the Blazers in the fall of 1979, was placed on waivers in November and then was reclaimed to finish the season when injuries decimated Portland's lineup.

Statistics of the 29-year-old Brewer's Portland season are not overwhelming—3.8 rebounds and 2.9 points a game while averaging 15 minutes of playing time a game.

There was dramatic improvement in his shooting. In his first 38 games he was just .393 from the floor on 33-84. In his last 29 games he shot at a .570 clip on 57 of 100.

But statistics don't really bother Brewer.

"I don't worry about the points," he says. "I just feel if I can make myself valuable to the team that will be enough." And Brewer satisfied Blazer Coach Jack Ramsay.

"Jim plays a good defense and is a good rebounder," said Ramsay. "He plays within the team game very well. Those things will always help you in making a contribution."

There was a twist of irony to the trade that brought Brewer to Portland from Detroit in the fall camp of 1979. Right at the start of the college draft in 1973, the Blazers acquired veterans John Johnson and Rick Roberson from the Cleveland Cavaliers. In exchange, the Blazers gave Cleveland the second draft choice in the nation.

Cleveland drafted Brewer right behind Doug Collins of the Philadelphia 76ers. And now Brewer is a Trail Blazer.

Brewer played 5½ seasons with Cleveland before being traded to Detroit. He never has been a prolific scorer, averaging 6.7 points a game in the NBA. In his best season, 1975-76 with Cleveland, he averaged 11.5 points. But he won second-team honors on the NBA's all-defensive team in both 1975-76 (behind only Paul Silas and John Havlicek) and in 1976-77 (behind Bobby Jones and E. C. Coleman).

A highlight of Brewer's pre-professional career was his selection to the 1972 United States Olympic Games team. His teammates included Doug Collins, Bobby Jones, Dwight Jones, Tom Henderson, Mike Bantom, John Brown, Tom Burleson, Tom McMillen and Ed Ratleff—all NBA performers.

RON BREWER

Ron Brewer
Guard, No. 10, 6'4", 180 lbs.
Born Sept. 16, 1955, Ft. Smith, AR
High School: Northside
College: Arkansas
Residence: Fayeteville, Arkansas

Overall, 1979-80 proved a fine second professional campaign for Ron Brewer of the Portland Trail Blazers.

The 6-4 guard from Arkansas, drafted in the first round in 1978, averaged 15.7 points a game, up from 13.3 in his first year when he won All Rookie honors in the National Basketball Association.

He averaged 19 points a game in the playoffs, second-best record on the club.

His assist total climbed from 165 as a rookie to 216. He was the only Trail Blazer to start every game.

Brewer led the club in free throw accuracy at .840, up from .820 his first season. He led Portland in games (27) with 20 or more points.

The only gloom in Brewer's second season was a shooting slump in the second half of the campaign.

As a rookie, Brewer shot .494 from the floor—best record for a rookie guard in Portland history.

Last season this mark dipped to .464 during the regular season and to .426 in the playoffs. Further, Brewer was shooting .501 from the floor after 49 games.

In fact, the Blazers arranged an early March meeting of Brewer and Dr. Bruce Ogilvie, noted sports psychologist from San Jose State.

"He told me I was second-guessing myself," said Brewer. "I wasn't playing with those killer instincts. I was just laying back and watching for the outcome. But I didn't think I should just keep shooting when I was shooting bad. I thought it was better to get my teammates involved."

Brewer says significantly:

"I'm a good shooter and I've got to take my shots. At first I was missing shots I normally make, and then I started thinking to myself, 'I shouldn't be missing those shots. I have to take time and start aiming the ball.'"

Of his consultation with Dr. Ogilvie, Brewer said, "I think I helped myself more than anybody. No one else can tell you how to solve a problem, when you know what you've been doing for a long time. I just realized that you got to keep on doing the thing that got you where you are."

One of the finest compliments Brewer received last season was from Calvin Murphy of the Houston Rockets.

"He's just a helluva player," said Murphy of Brewer. "Everybody hits slumps. It's part of the game. He won't have many. One thing about him that I like is that he doesn't say anything. A lot of players, especially young ones, try to talk their way into the league, but not Ron. He just keeps his mouth shut, chews his gum and gets 33."

Brewer last season averaged 20 or more points a game against four opponents—22.5 against San Antonio, 22 against Houston, 21.5 against New Jersey and 20.8 against Denver.

Stu Inman, Portland's director of player personnel, has said of Brewer:

"Ron could become one of the all-time great NBA guards. Only time will tell us that."

The Blazers, obviously, hope the time is now.

BOB GROSS

Bob Gross
Forward, No. 30, 6'6", 200 lbs.
Born Aug. 3, 1953, San Pedro
High School: Fermin Lausen (San Pedro)
College: Long Beach State '75
Residence: Portland, Oregon

The past two seasons have been memorable ones for Bob Gross of the Portland Trail Blazers.

But not all of the memories have been pleasant.

It really started late in the 1977-78 campaign with a broken ankle—a fracture that sidelined him for the playoffs.

In 1978-79 Gross missed 29 games with an assortment of injuries. Last season he missed 20, including the first 13 in a row.

Gross' scoring averages dropped from 12.7 in '77-'78 to 9.7 in '78-'79 to 8.7 last season.

His shooting averages dropped from a then club record of .529 to .472 to .468. Still the 6-6 forward from Long Beach State owns a career shooting mark of .508—the best in history for a Trail Blazer forward.

Gross, drafted by Portland in the second round in 1975, believes a change in team style also hurt him last season.

There were bright spots for Gross last season. He was second on Portland in assists with 228.

He was second in free-throw accuracy at .833.

In fact, Gross has proved that a player can make himself a strong foul shooter. He was just .683 at the line as a rookie. The last four seasons he has been .851, .800, .807 and .833.

Gross closed out strongly last season. In his last seven games, he shot .628 from the field and .923 from the foul line.

He had some brilliant shootng moments against individual opponents—.654 against Utah, .600 against Boston, .583 against Golden State, .563 against Detroit and .556 against Indiana.

He scored in double figures against eight opponents, was strongest against Boston (17.0 points a game), Utah (13.3), Kansas City (13.0) and the Philadelphia 76ers (12.5).

He scored 22 points in one game against Boston, 21 against Kansas City and 21 against the Los Angeles Lakers.

Gross now ranks fifth on Portland's all-time list with 345 games played and is sixth in minutes played with 8,891.

He is ninth in scoring (3,416 points), seventh in rebounds (1,600) and sixth in assists (1,071).

Highlights of Gross' professional career, of course, were the fifth and sixth games of the 1977 world championship series against Philadelphia.

In the fifth game, he scored 25 points in 25 minutes, was 10-13 from the floor and 5-5 from the foul line.

In the title game, he was 12 for 16 from the floor.

He drew some votes for Most Valuable Player in the playoffs. The Blazers would love to see him return to that form.

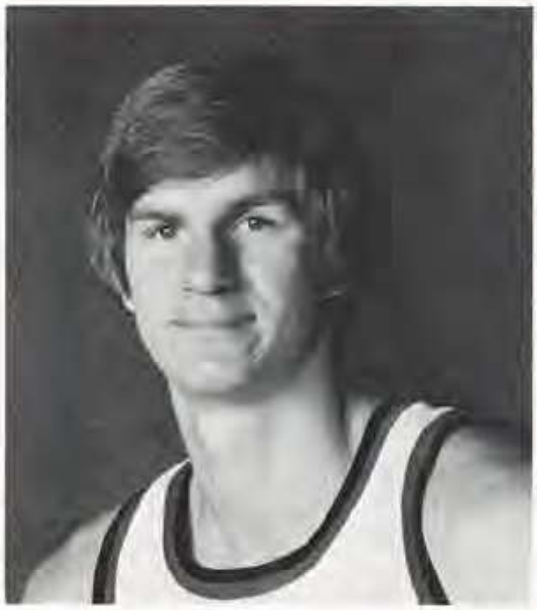
KEVIN KUNNERT



Kevin Kunnert
Center, No. 42, 7'0", 231 lbs.
Born Nov. 11, 1951
College: Iowa '73

And Portland's injury jinx continued . . .

In his four consecutive National Basketball Association seasons prior to joining the Trail Blazers, 6-11 center Kevin Kunnert missed only six games.

With the Houston Rockets, the Iowa product played 80 games, 81 games and 80 games and with the San Diego Clippers in 1978-79 he played 81 games.

Kunnert arrived in Portland, along with Kermit Washington, as partial compensation for Bill Walton, who signed with the Clippers.

Kunnert played the first 17 games with the Blazers last season, missed a game in Milwaukee and then hit the floor hard in a clash with Phoenix.

The verdict was torn ligaments in the left knee. He missed the rest of the season.

It is hoped, of course, that Kunnert can resume full-time duty with the Blazers this time around.

He had contributed strongly to the early-season explosion of the 1979-80 Blazers.

He was averaging 7 points and 6.2 rebounds a game while playing an average of 16.8 minutes a contest. On the basis of a 33-minute game, he would have been averaging 14 points and more than 12 rebounds. And he was tough on defense. Of his own talents, Kunnert says, "I think I play good defense and rebound well. And I play hard. I hustle out there. I may not always play well but I'll be trying."

"I'm not a great jumper," he says. "Playing in Portland's offense was a big adjustment for me. I'm not used to facing the basket. I've normally played with my back to the basket. Like I say, there are a lot of adjustments to make."

In six NBA seasons before he joined the Blazers, Kunnert played in 461 games. He averaged 9 points and 7.7 rebounds a contest while playing an average of 23.3 minutes a game.

And he shot a solid .478 from the floor.

His best single-season scoring average was 12.9 for Houston in 1975-76. His best shooting was .512 for the Rockets in 1974-75. In his best rebounding season, he collected 787 for Houston in 80 games in 1975-76.

Kunnert was the Chicago Bulls' first-round draft choice out of Iowa in 1973. He had been Iowa's all-time rebound leader with 914, an average of 12.7 a contest. And he led the Big Ten in rebounding in both his junior and senior seasons. He also averaged 18.2 points a game as a junior and 19.2 points a contest as a senior.

Before his first professional season, Kunnert was traded by Chicago Sept. 10, 1973, to Buffalo, where Jack Ramsay was the coach. During his rookie season he was traded again, this time with Dave Wohl to Houston for Jack Marin and Matt Guokas. Kunnert became a free agent in 1978 and signed with Boston. He then shifted to San Diego with the trade in franchises.

CALVIN NATT

Calvin Natt
Forward, No. 33
6'6", 220 lbs.
Born Jan. 8, 1957
College: NE Louisiana '79

Calvin Natt joined the Portland Trail Blazers for their final 25 games of the 1979-80 regular season.

And the 6-6 forward from Northeast Louisiana, obtained from New Jersey in the Maurice Lucas trade, exploded for 20.4 points a game to lead the Blazers in the final stages of his rookie campaign.

Only two Blazers in history—Geoff Petrie and Sidney Wicks—ever posted better season scoring averages. And not taking anything away from Petrie or Wicks, they played in the run-and-gun days of losing teams.

For the season, Natt, a first-found draft choice of New Jersey, averaged 19.9 points a game, 8.8 rebounds a contest and shot .479 from the field.

Yet observers believe Portland fans have not seen the real Natt yet.

"He's going to be a great player for us, but it's unfortunate we got him so late in the season," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "I don't think anybody here is going to see what Clavin Natt really can do this (1979-80) season."

Natt, named to the NBA's All Rookie team, agrees.

"I'm trying to learn a new system fast and find out what my role on the team is supposed to be," said Natt. "And I'm trying to get to know new people fast so I can feel I am a part of this team. I don't feel that yet."

Natt added, "I don't think I am wrong to be taking the shots I am taking but it's like I lost my shot on the way to Portland. The way I am shooting shows that I'm not comfortable. It's like every time I take a shot I think I MUST make this shot.

"I'm pressing a little when I probably don't have to, but I feel I have to prove myself all over again."

Natt describes his play this way:

"I am not a finesse player. I like contact. I love contact. I have talent and I like to be aggressive."

Blazer Assistant Coach Bucky Buckwalter, who scouted Natt in college, asseses the potential superstar this way: "I am a fan of his. He does what it takes to win. If he sees there is a deficiency in rebounding, then he'll hit the boards hard. If they need scoring, he can shoot the ball."

When Natt was traded, General Manager Charlie Theokas of New Jersey said, "This is the toughest deal we've ever had to make. We're losing a bonafide, certified player. He's a great rookie and an outstanding person."

In four seasons at Northeast Louisiana, Natt averaged 23.9 points and 11.9 rebounds a game and shot an incredible .575 from the field.

After graduation, he was voted the Most Valuable Player in Hawaii's Aloha Classic.

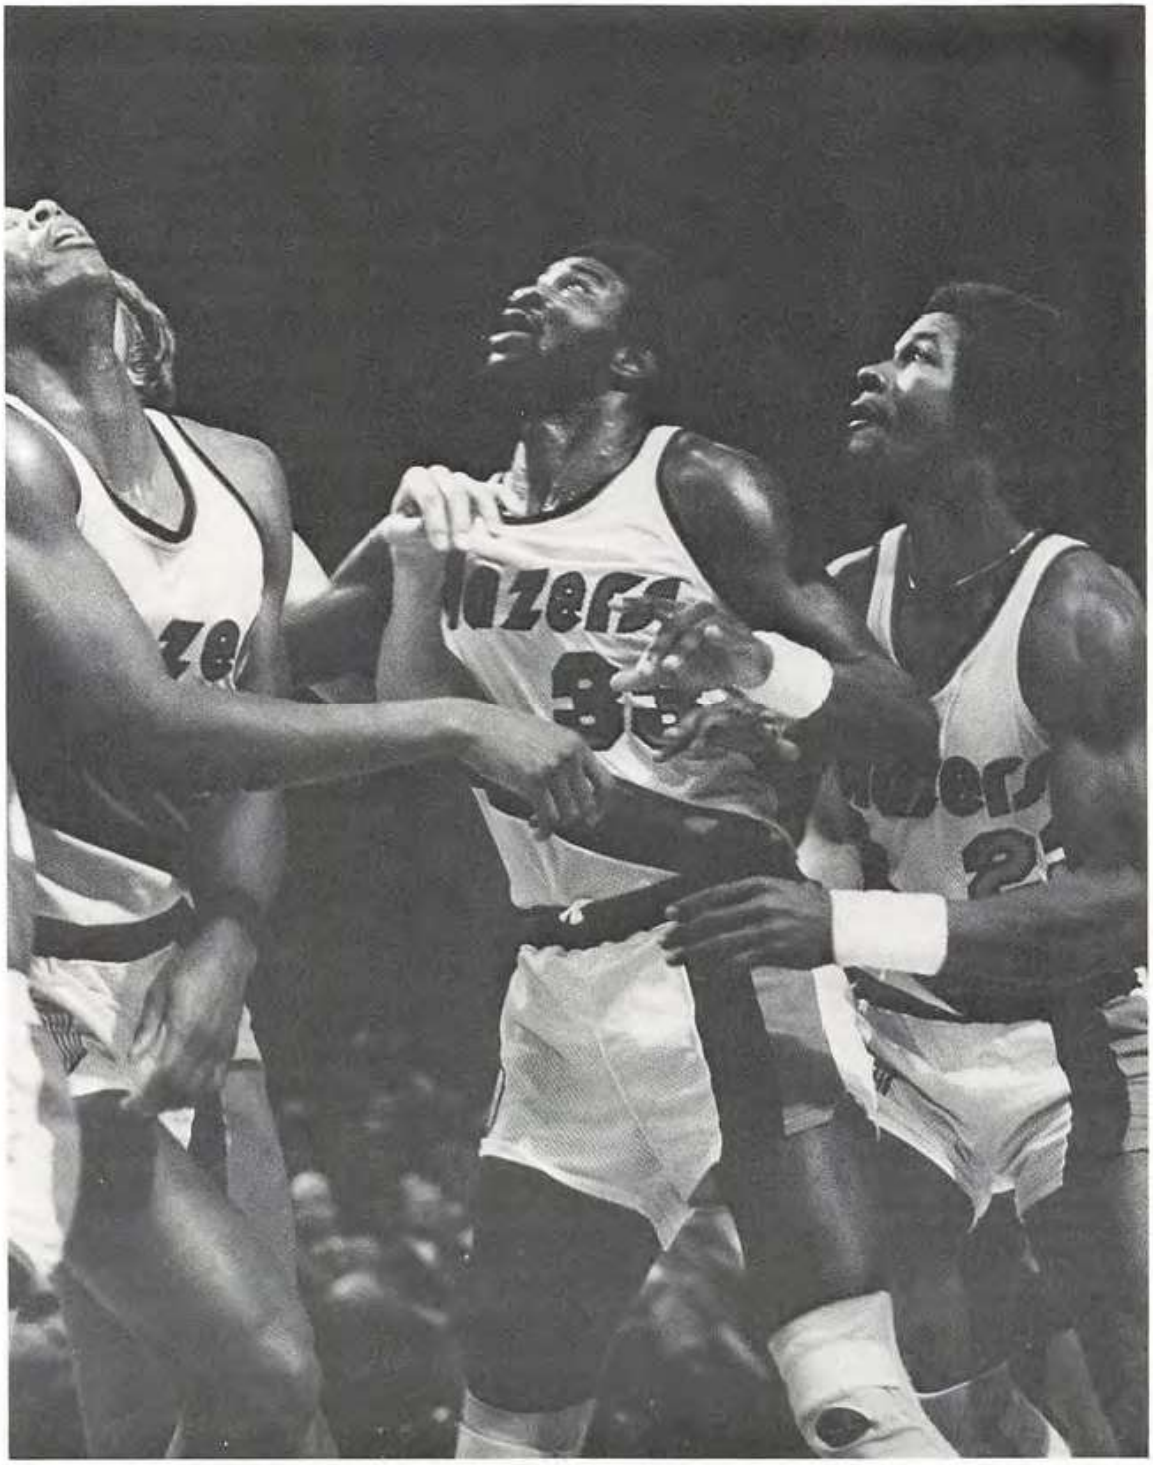
A highlight of his first season with Portland was a 39-point explosion in Detroit. This was the highest single-game total by a Blazer during the '79-'80 campaign.

Son of a Baptist minister, Natt is deeply religious. His first practice in Portland was on a Sunday. He made sure he went to church first.

"I know what they say," he laughs. "That the minister's kid is always the worst kid around."

But he adds, seriously:

"I grew up going to church every Sunday. I was raised to be nice to people and to put God first in my life. You do that and you're going to come out ahead."



TOM OWENS

Tom Owens
Center, No. 25, 6'10"; 230 lbs.
Born June 28, 1949, Bronx, NY
High School: La Salle (New York)
College: South Carolina '71
Residence: Portland, Oregon

After spending much of the spring and summer as a free agent—with uncertainty about the future—Tom Owens has returned to the Portland Trail Blazers for a fourth season.

He's armed with a new three-year contract that should lead to a clear mind.

There were some bright spots in the past season for the 6-10 center from University of South Carolina.

Owens averaged 16.4 points a game. This was down from 18.5 in 1978-79 but still was the second-highest average on the low-scoring Trail Blazers.

He shot .514 from the field, down from what then was a club record of .548 a season earlier. But he still posted the second-best shooting mark on the Portland club.

Owens, himself, was disappointed with his last season.

"I've been out of sync, out of rhythm all year," he said during the campaign. "I went through a divorce and missed some practices with that. My father died and I missed a game and then I didn't start a couple of games."

"I was disgusted with all the injuries that happened to me," he said. "You lose your timing when things like that happen. "All of the problems have been a big factor, especially compared with a year earlier (1978-79) when I played 82 games without any major problems."

Owens was particularly upset with his rebounding last season.

"I had a lot of trouble with rebounding the second part of the year," he said. "I acknowledged that. I didn't get as many as I can. "Maybe I just played too many minutes and maybe I'm just physically not strong enough to do that. I was disappointed a lot of the time, too."

Owens is a veteran of nine professional basketball teams—Houston and Portland in the NBA and Memphis, Carolina, St. Louis, Kentucky, Indiana and San Antonio in the American Basketball Association. His stay at Portland is his longest with any one club.

Owens frequently is greeted by expressions of surprise when he plays a sparkling game.

"People seem surprised when I really play well," he laughs. "I'm thin, pasty-faced and don't look like an NBA center." But he adds: "I can shoot and rebound a little." He's proved it.

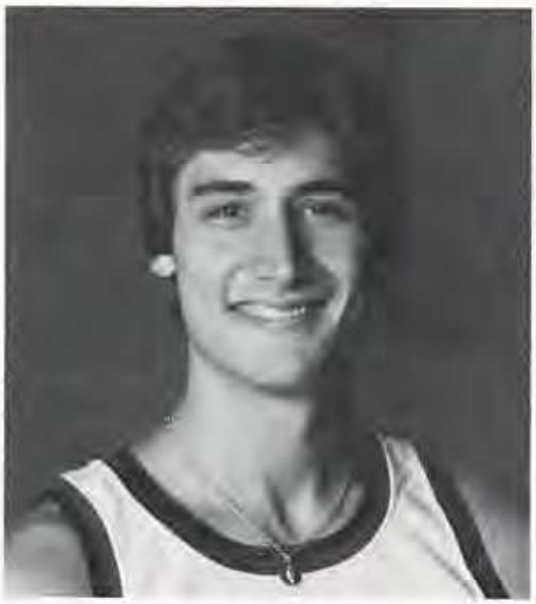
JIM PAXSON



Jim Paxson
Guard, No. 4, 6'6", 200 lbs.
Born July 9, 1957, Kettering, OH
High School: Alter High School, Kettering, Ohio
College: Dayton '79
Residence: Kettering, Ohio

Jim Paxson, 6-6 guard from University of Dayton, was Portland's first-round selection in the 1979 college draft.

His rookie season did not stand the National Basketball Association on its ear.

He averaged 6.2 points and 2 assists a game, shot .711 from the foul line and was .412 from the field—quite a downer from his four-year college mark of .521.

But a major plus for Paxson was his improvement in shooting accuracy late in the season.

In his last 28 games, he hit on 91 of 192 from the floor for .474—a more than respectable mark.

During his rookie campaign , Paxson expressed some displeasure with his own play.

"I'm still a little disappointed with my personal play," he said. "Just my overall play. I'm not doing anything real poorly, but I'm fighting myself a lot. I think I could be doing everything a little better."

Paxson is a somewhat rare player who does not object to the long schedule of the NBA.

"As long as you get your rest and take care of yourself, it doesn't bother you," he says. "Your body tells you how much rest you need."

Paxson is a second-generation player in the National Basketball Association. His father, Jim Sr., played with the old Minneapolis Lakers and Cincinnati Royals in the 1950s.

"Things have changed a lot since he played," says the younger Paxson." He played only for a couple of seasons because he had a family. Back then he was able to make more money selling insurance."

Not always true today.

Being on his own actually proved the toughest challenge for Paxson.

"One time when we were on the road for about a week and a half," he says, "I got home and found a phone bill that was due on the sixth. Well that day was the fifth, so I sent it in."

"Next month," he says, "I got a late notice warning me about it."

Paxson probably solved that problem. He got married last summer.

In his rookie season, Paxson scored in double figures against three opponents—Detroit (11.0), Washington (10.0) and New Jersey (10.0).

He shot better than .500 from the field against five opponents—Cleveland (.545), Detroit (.529), Washington (.529), Milwaukee (.517) and San Diego (.513).

At Dayton, Paxson was a strong shooter.

He was .484 from the field as a freshman, .546 as a sophomore, .521 as a junior and .526 as a senior.

He averaged 18 points a game in four seasons at Dayton and climbed to 23.2 points a contest during his senior season.

Of Paxson, Blazer Coach Jack Ramsay said during the past campaign, "He's done very well."

"He has handled the ball exceptionally well," said Ramsay. "He has been very good at making the quick play, making the accurate pass in the split-second situation."

And more is expected.

LARRY STEELE

Larry Steele
Forward, No. 15, 6'5", 191 lbs.
Born May 5, 1949, Greencastle, IN High School: Bainbridge (Indiana)
College: Kentucky '71
Residence: Portland, Oregon

It was a beautiful start — but the ending was lousy.

Back in November of 1979, Larry Steele was breezing along for the Portland Trail Blazers.

He had started the first 14 games of the season. He was scoring just a shade under 10 points a game, his best clip since the world's championship season of 1976-77.

Steele, the 6-5 guard-forward from Kentucky, was still having some shooting problems. But as a game in Chicago on November 10 approached, he had hit better than .500 from the floor in his four previous games.

Then, in that November 10 game in Chicago, Steele played just 17 minutes in extreme pain. He was 0-6 from the floor and failed to score a point.

His knees — eventually both of them — had given out. Steele, who never had played in fewer than 65 games, was out for the season.

Surgery, it is hoped, has repaired the knees. And Steele is getting ready for his 10th National Basketball campaign.

Steele, who has played his entire NBA career with Portland, is one of few active players of equal experience who can make that statement.

Dave Cowens has played his entire career with Boston.

Wes Unseld, Sam Lacey, Calvin Murphy and Rudy Tomjanovich all remained with basically the same team but all were involved in franchise switches.

Steele now is Portland's third-highest scorer in history with 4,999 points. He will hit the 5,000 plateau with his first field goal or free throw of the 1980-81 season.

He ranks second on the Blazers in assists with 1,719.

He is third in minutes, field goals, field goals attempted and free throws, fourth in free throws attempted and sixth in rebounds.

Steele also is Portland's all-time leader in personal fouls with 1,832, almost 600 more than any other Blazer, and in disqualifications because of personals with 45, more than twice the total of any other Portland player.

But the short season — for Steele — of 1979-80 was a landmark one.

For the first time in his professional career, Steele was not ejected from a single game.

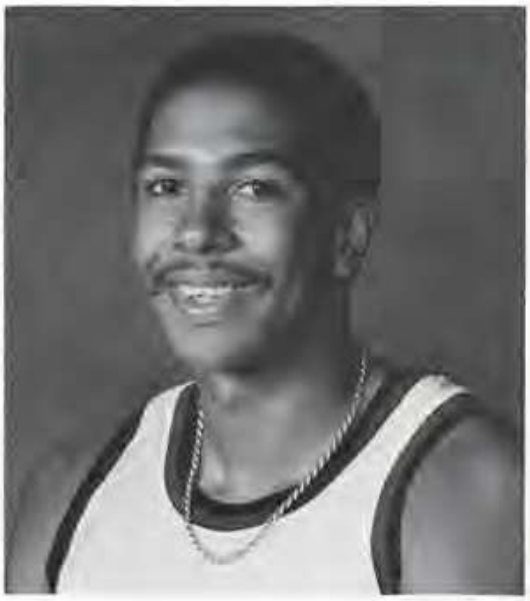
MYCHAL THOMPSON



Mychal Thompson
Forward-Center, No. 43, 6'10", 226 lbs.
Born Jan. 30, 1955, Nassau, Bahamas
High School: Jackson (Miami)
College: Minnesota '78
Residence: Nassau, Bahamas

If any single player could make a major difference for the Portland Trail Blazers this season, it could be Mychal Thompson, 6-10 center-forward from University of Minnesota.

And you might emphasize the "center" part of center-forward. It's a strong possibility that Thompson will spend a great deal of time in the pivot during the 1980-81 campaign.

Thompson this season will write the third chapter—and he hopes the happiest one—of his National Basketball Association career.

Drafted No. 1 in the nation in 1978, Thompson responded with a sparkling rookie campaign.

He averaged 14.7 points a game, hauled in 604 rebounds for an 8.3 average, was second on Portland in offensive rebounds with 198, shot a strong .490 from the field and led the club in blocked shots with 134.

He was even stronger in the playoffs with a team-leading .490 from the floor, a 10.3 rebound average and a hot .500 from the floor.

The future appeared bright.

Then, in late July of 1979 in a pickup game in his native Bahamas, he drove for a layup, and suffered a leg fracture. Three screws were inserted in the leg to assist the healing.

But Thompson still missed the entire 1979-80 campaign.

Thompson, named to the NBA All Rookie team, in 1978-79, was optimistic in late summer about his physical condition.

"I'm coming along OK," he said. "I'll be 100 per cent without a doubt. All I have to do is keep working on the leg with weights and build the muscles up so they are similar to the right one."

He doesn't think the layoff will bother his shooting accuracy.

"The touch is still there," he said. "It's a lot like riding a bike. Once you have it you don't lose it."

About playing center, Thompson said, "I played center in college. I think I can do it. I think I can hold my own against the big centers in the league. I think it would be fun playing in the hole."

Thompson is excited about the 1980-81 season.

"Can you believe I've never played with either Calvin Natt or Kermit Washington?" he asks.

"I'm really looking forward to teaming up with them, as well as the rest of the team," he says. "We should be very strong on the boards. When you control the boards, you control the game. I love to rebound. I like that over scoring points."

At University of Minnesota, Thompson was the Golden Gophers' all-time scoring leader with 1,992 points. He was the school's all-time rebound leader with 956.

And his career shooting percentage, .561, was the best in Minnesota history. He was named All American in his last three seasons at Minnesota.

And there was a catch to his rookie record with Portland. He was at his best in the stretch run that led to the playoffs. He started the last 20 games and responded with 409 points for a 20.5 average and with 187 rebounds for 9.4 a contest. He scored in double figures in all 20 games.

It's litle wonder he could make quite a difference for the 1980-81 Trail Blazers.

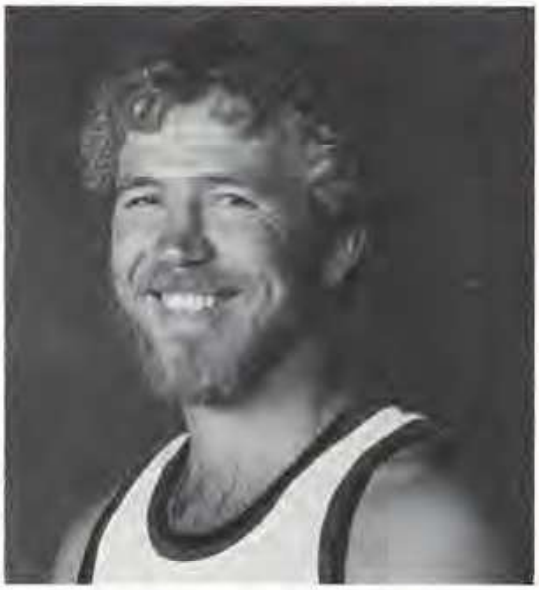
DAVE TWARDZIK



Dave Twardzik
Guard, No. 13, 6'1", 180 lbs.
Born Sept. 20, 1950, Middletown, PA
High School: Middletown Area
College: Old Dominion '72
Residence: Portland, Oregon

For the first time in his four National Basketball Association seasons—all with Portland—Dave Twardzik slumped below .500 in shooting accuracy during the 1979-80 campaign.

Twardzik, the feisty guard from Old Dominion, was .464 from the field, a fine mark for many players but not up to standards of the Portland veteran.

It did not help, of course, that Twardzik missed 15 games with injuries, played fewer than 10 minutes in eight other contests and played in considerable pain in many other clashes.

But Twardzik's career NBA shooting mark is .552—and that's the fifth-best among active players in the league.

Despite his injuries, Twardzik was Portland's quarterback when he was in action and led the club in assists with a career high 273. He also averaged 8.5 points a game, just a shade below his NBA career average of 9.5.

Twardzik, of course, was drafted by Portland in 1972—in the second round just ahead of Ollie Johnson and Lloyd Neal. It took him four seasons to get to the Rose City. He signed with the Virginia Squires and played four American Basketball Association seasons. He averaged 9 points a game while shooting .501 from the floor and .818 from the foul line.

In perhaps his finest performance last season, Twardzik scored 23 points in leading Portland to a critical March victory over Los Angeles.

Twardzik last season averaged in double figures in scoring against 10 of 21 opponents.

He proved toughest against New Jersey (19.5), Atlanta (16.0), San Antonio and Houston (each 13.5) and Chicago (13.0).

He still posted some sizzling shooting marks against individual opponents.

He was .833 from the floor against Indiana, .688 against San Antonio, .667 against Atlanta, .625 against New York and .600 against both Phoenix and New Jersey.

Twardzik, in just four seasons, already ranks as Portland's 10th-highest all-time scorer with 2,666 points.

He is ninth in personal fouls, seventh in games played, minutes played, assists and free throws attempted and sixth in free throws made.

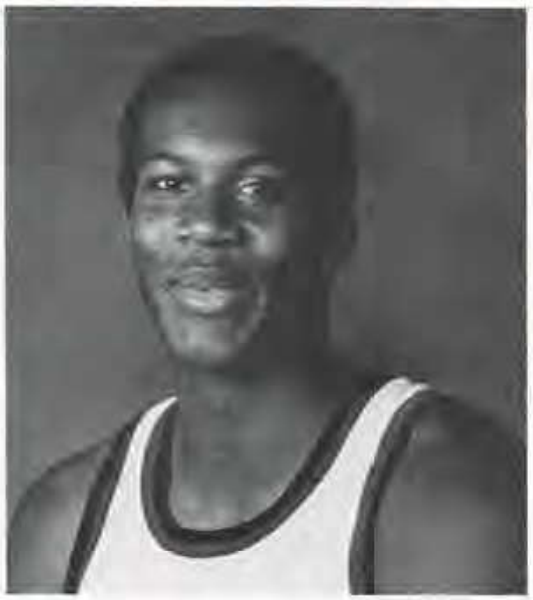
KERMIT WASHINGTON



Kermit Washington
Forward, No. 42, 6'8", 230 lbs.
Born Sept. 17, 1951, Washington, D.C.
College: American University '73

Kermit Washington's first season as a Portland Trail Blazers was —to put it mildly—a memorable one.

Check the 1979-80 record of the 6-8 forward from American University, obtained from San Diego in the Bill Walton compensation award:

SCORING—Washington went over 1,000 points —a total of 1,073—for the first time in his seven-season professional career . . . his 13.4 point average was a career high . . . he scored in double figures against 18 of 21 opponents with his best averages against Boston (18.0) and Indiana (17.0).

REBOUNDING—Washington led the Trail Blazers with a career high of 842 rebounds and he ranked ninth in the National Basketball Association with a 10.6 average . . . he led Portland in rebounds in 51 of 80 games . . . in the past four seasons, Washington's rebound totals have increased, in order, from 492 to 614 to 800 or 842 . . .

SHOOTING ACCURACY—Washington set a new all-time Portland record—among players officially qualifying for ranking—by shooting .553 from the field . . . he ranked eighth in the NBA and shot .500 or better in 59 games . . .

ASSISTS—Washington earned a new career high of 167 assists with the Trail Blazers . . .

BLOCKED SHOTS—Washington led Portland with 131 blocks, more than twice the total of any teammate . . . and he set another career record in the process . . .

So maybe Washington failed to play defense? He was voted to the NBA's second All Star Defensive team last season. It's little wonder he was selected to play in the league's All Star game for the first time in his seven professional seasons.

In his first season with the Blazers, Washington posted some incredible shooting marks against individual opponents. He was .692 from the floor against Detroit . . . 667 against Indiana . . . 647 against New Jersey . . . 643 against Utah . . . 630 against Phoenix . . . and was over .500 against every opponent except Washington.

Yet during the season, he said, "I'm insecure in my shooting. On the teams I've played on my role has been to rebound, pass and play defense."

There was no question about Washington's rebounding. He hauled in 25 in one game against Houston . . . 23 against Milwaukee . . . 22 against Los Angeles . . . 20 against Phoenix . . .

Yet what Washington provided for the Blazers more than any other single thing was enthusiasm.

"I play the very best I can every night," he says. "I never had great raw ability. I have to play hard, be enthusiastic. I enjoy winning, just like everyone else."

KELVIN RANSEY

Kelvin Ransey
Guard, No. 14
6-2", 180 lbs.
Born 5-3-58, Toledo, Ohio
High School: Toledo Macomber
College: Ohio State '80
Residence, Columbus, Ohio

A lot could rest on the shoulders of Kelvin Ransey, 6-1 guard from Ohio State obtained by the Trail Blazers in a trade during the first round of the 1980 college draft . . . Ransey could be the playmaking, penetrating, sharpshooting guard who directs Portland's attack in the quest for another NBA championship . . .

Ransey was drafted fourth in the first round by Chicago, then traded to Portland for Ron Lester of Iowa and a future first-round draft choice . . . Lester had been drafted 10th . . .

Ransey was the second-highest scorer (1,934 points for a 17.3 average) in Ohio State history, ranking behind only long-time NBA star Jerry Lucas . . . he played 112 games for Ohio State and was a starter in all except one . . . he set a school record for minutes played with 3,969 . . . he shot .490 from the floor and .780 from the foul line . . . as a senior, he set an Ohio State record for assists with 177 . . .

Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller said of Ransey, "Kelvin is the finest back court player I have ever coached. He has been an unselfish athlete who has done what is best for the team. He is a complete basketball player" . . .

Ransey played in Portland's rookie camp and the Los Angeles Summer League and impressed Blazer Coach Jack Ramsay . . . "Kelvin has shown me that he is a very solid player," said Ramsay . . . "That's for sure," said Ramsay when asked if Ransey could be thrown into major action quicker than most rookies . . .

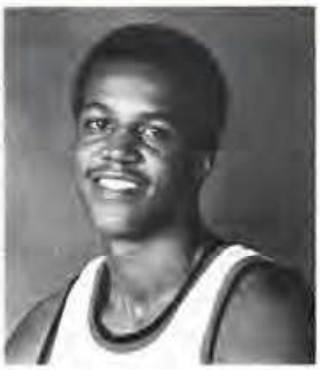
DAVID LAWRENCE



David Lawrence
Forward, No. 40
6-10", 215 lbs.
Born 5-5-58, Rayne, La.
High School: W.O. Boston, Lake Charles, La.
College, McNeese State '80
Residence: Lake Charles, La.

The Portland Trail Blazers selected David Lawrence, 6-10 forward from McNeese State in Lake Charles, La., as their first choice in the second round of the 1980 college draft . . . and McNeese State Coach Glenn Duhon approves . . . "David is definitely one of the best players in the nation," he says, "and is probably the best player ever to wear the blue and gold of McNeese State. He should have a bright future in the pros."

In four seasons at McNeese, Lawrence scored 1,938 points, second-highest total in the school's history . . . ironically, his older brother, Edmund, was the all-time scoring champion at McNeese . . . Lawrence also finished with 1,026 rebounds, the school's third-highest total ever . . .

In four years, Lawrence shot an astounding .553 from the floor and was .635 as a junior and .561 as a senior . . . he averaged 22.4 points a game as a junior and 20.6 a contest as a senior . . . he led his team in scoring both seasons . . .

Coach Duhon says of Lawrence, "He has good mobility and ball handling ability for a big man. He can dribble and pass well. The transition game is particularly important in the NBA, and this is where David excels . . . His mobility makes him a candidate for a small forward post. As he matures and fills out physically, later on, he could fit into the big forward slot."

As a junior, Lawrence was the only player in the Nation to rank among NCAA Division I leaders in three areas—scoring, rebounding and shooting accuracy . . . he scored a career high 38 points against Arkansas-Little Rock and his rebounding high was 24 against Lamar University.

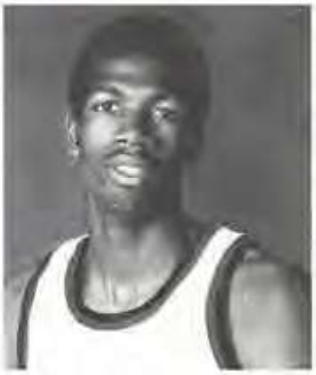
MICHAEL HARPER



Michael Harper
Center, No. 32
6-10", 215 lbs.
Born 12-9-57, Chicago, Ill.
High School: Quigley, Chicago
College, North Park, Chicago '80
Residence: Chicago

In rookie camp and in the Los Angeles Summer League, 6-10 center Michael Harper from North Park College in Chicago kind of shocked the leaders of the Trail Blazers . . . sure, he had been drafted in the third round . . .

And sure his record was impressive . . . 18.4 points a game over four seasons . . . career shooting mark of .573, with .603 as a junior and .591 as a senior . . . 1,184 rebounds in 102 games . . . leading his school to three straight Division III NCAA championships . . .

But in the early going Harper proved even more impressive than his record . . . "Mike Harper has developed amazingly well," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay after summer action . . . "I think he has a chance, a good chance, to make our squad somewhere. I don't know how it all fits, but we certainly want to bring him back to fall camp."

"For a 6-10 player," said Ramsay, "Harper is very quick, has good ability and he is an intelligent player. I just see him getting better and better. And he is a great individual, too. There is very good quality in his character."

Stu Inman, Portland's vice president in charge of player personnel, said, "The biggest surprise so far has been Michael Harper. He keeps getting better every day. We were a little worried about his body (190 pounds) but we have him lifting every other day and he's on a protein diet."

BRUCE COLLINS

Bruce Collins
Forward, No. 22
6-5", 185 lbs.
Born 2-8-58, Rock Springs, Wyo.
High School: Rock Springs
College: Weber State '80
Residence: Rock Springs

Portland's second choice in the second round of the 1980 college draft was Bruce Collins, 6-5 guard-forward from Weber State . . . who showed enough in rookie camp and the Los Angeles Summer League to return for fall camp . . .

At Weber State Collins finished as the leading scorer in the history of the Big Sky Conference with 2,109 points and an average of 16.9 points a game . . . he also was the sixth-best rebounder in league history with 873 . . . he shot a solid .486 from the floor . . . up to .537 as a senior . . . and was .774 from the foul line . . . up to .817 as a senior . . .

Says Weber State Coach Neil McCarthy of Collins, "Bruce has shown tremendous growth each year. He's the type of player who comes up with the big plays each game. We looked to Bruce for leadership on and off the court. We were fortunate to have a player of his calibre at Weber State."

Weber State Assistant Coach Riley Wimberley said of Collins, "A solid player as far as fundamentals go. An excellent background in the defensive game. He has been in a winning program throughout his basketball career and that'll help. He has a real winning attitude."

Collins, himself, says, "The key thing is my defense. I have tried to pattern myself after Dennis Johnson and Mike Cooper. I have been working on my shooting and think I have really improved there."

Collins says, "I really don't know a lot about Portland. I have played against Ron Brewer and have talked to Jim Brewer and Johnny Davis (former Blazer) a lot. I just want to play in the NBA."

HENRY WEINHARD

Henry Weinhard
Brewmaster, No. 1, 5'10", 171 lbs.
Born: 1830, Wurtemburg, Germany
High School: Wurtemburg Area
College: Brewers apprentice

At the age of 22, and after years of apprenticeship, a talented Henry Weinhard decided he was ready for the major leagues. Upon surveying his options, Henry determined the best opportunity for a rookie such as him was in America.

In 1852 he came to the United States and immediately found a berth with the brewers in Cincinati, Ohio. He spent four years with this team polishing his skills.

As a free agent, he was intrigued by reports concerning bright openings on the Pacific coast. So early in 1856 he made the long voyage, via the isthmus, to the far west and hooked up with a Vancouver, Washington organization where he plied his trade for six months.

He then felt the time was right to make his move, so, in 1856, he established his own brewery near Fort Vancouver. It wasn't long before soldiers, loggers and trappers of the area became very big Henry Weinhard fans.

In 1860 he moved his operations to its present location on Burnside in Portland. From then on, Henry chalked up an enviable record of victories. He kept acquiring more equipment and adding more facilities to constantly increase his output while stubbornly maintaining the high level of excellence he had become known for. Everywhere along the coast Weinhard's beer was recognized as unsurpassed by any other native product.

Henry's experience and foresight prompted him to locate in Portland because he realized this area would eventually become the primary source of premium brewing ingredients in the United States. Time has proven him right.

Rare, two-row malting barley, for example, is grown in very few areas of the country, but Oregon's Klamath Basin is the most prominent. And the unique Cascade hops—which Henry recognized as being equal if not superior to the exalted Hallertau hop of Bavaria are raised here in Oregon.

Today, two labels continue in the proud, teutonic tradition set forth by Henry Weinhard 124 years ago. The perennial hometown favorite, Blitz-Weinhard, and the handmade, ultra-premium that is his namesake, Henry Weinhard's Private Reserve.

Trailblazer fans can expect a lot of good things from both of them this season. Again.

"HERE'S TO THE BLAZERS' GOOD HEALTH. NATURALLY."

My Shell Auto Care station is everything you never expected car repairs to be.

Everything. Every time I fix your car.

Not only do you get a written estimate in advance, you get a certified mechanic to supervise the work on your car. You even get your old parts back to inspect.

Then, when I'm done, I'll back the work in writing.

You get a written limited warranty that covers all parts and labor for 90 days or 4,000 miles of normal driving, whichever comes first.

Any problems, bring your car and your warranty back. I'll do the work over or refund your money.

Now, maybe you didn't expect all that. But that doesn't mean you shouldn't be able to get it.

Mechanics certified by N.I.A.S.E.

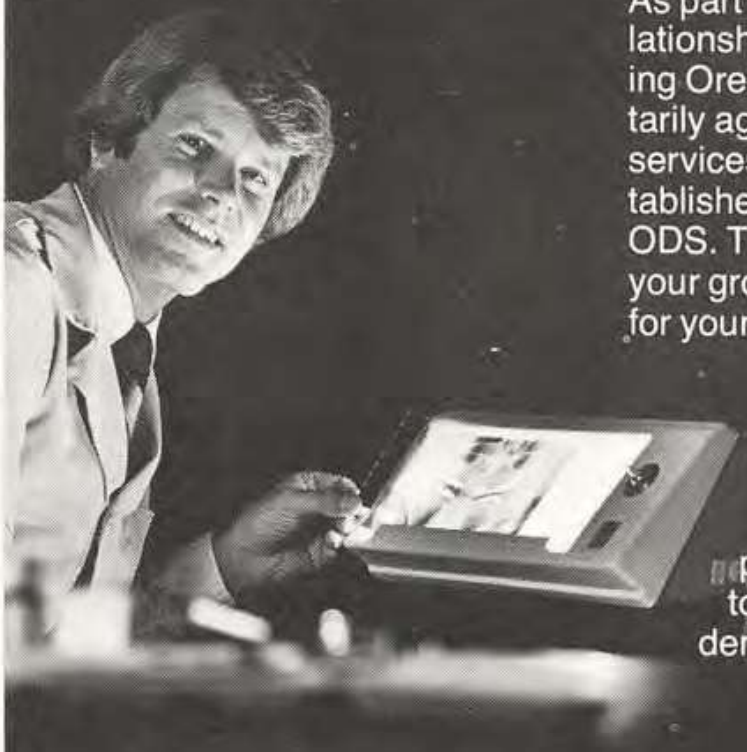
ODS is a dental plan with teeth in it.

Thanks to your dentist.

We've got to hand it to the Dentists in Oregon. Working as partners with ODS, they've been a big factor in establishing a dental plan that's easy for you to administer. Easy to understand. And of greatest value to you and your employees.



ODS eliminates time-consuming paperwork.
Because of ODS's unique working relationship with 95% of Oregon's Dentists, all paperwork is handled between ODS and the Dentist. That means no more headaches shuttling forms back and forth between Dentist's office, the insurance carrier and the plan administrator.
And what's more, since your staff spends less time unscrambling claims and dispensing forms, there's more time for the real business at hand. Your business.

Unique arrangement with 95% of Oregon's dentists provides "excellent value".
As part of the unique working relationship with ODS, participating Oregon Dentists have voluntarily agreed that dental fees for services will not exceed limits established in cooperation with ODS. The net effect being that your group gets more dental care for your dollar.

Save time, Save money, Act now.
If you want to establish a group dental plan or improve upon your present plan, call ODS today. We'll show you a dental plan with teeth in it.

DILLIGENCE, MY CHILD, DILLIGENCE.

CAN YOU TELL ME HOW TO GET TO THE NALLEY'S BASKETBALL HALL OF FAME?

Particular people choose Nalley's fine foods for good reasons. We make everything from pickles to chili to mayonnaise. And everything we make, we make with diligence.

RADIO/TELEVISION

RADIO

The Trailblazers radio network is the largest in the NBA with 27 stations in four states, the flagship station being 50,000 watt KEX 1190.

BILL SCHONELY

A few years ago walking pneumonia prevented Bill Schonely from broadcasting two Portland Trail Blazers' games. These, in his first 10 years as the Blazers' only broadcaster, were the only games Schonely ever missed — until the 1980 pre-season schedule. Schonely suffered a heart attack while playing golf late in the summer in Pendleton in the sagebrush country of eastern Oregon. His recovery rate was rapid, as befits a former U. S. Marine, and Schonely was expecting to return to the microphone in time for Portland's regular season opener. Schonely, who made the battle cry of "Rip City" — for a perfect basketball shot — famous in Portland, came to the Rose City after seven years as sports director of KVI radio in Seattle. He also announced action for the Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League and the Seattle Pilots of the American Baseball League. Schonely's popularity in Portland was demonstrated clearly by the thousands of letters he received while recovering from his heart attack.

STEVE JONES

Steve Jones, who has been one of the top color commentators on CBS television, will return this season to assist Bill Schonely on the Trail Blazer radio network and the Paramount Theatre telecasts. Jones, first color man to travel with the Blazers, even had his first whirl at play-by-play broadcasting during pre-season games while Schonely was recuperating from a heart attack. Jones' background is solid. He was a basketball star at both Portland's Franklin High School and at University of Oregon, where he twice was named Most Valuable Player. Jones played eight American Basketball Association seasons with seven different teams, finished his professional career in 1975-76 with the Portland Trail Blazers.

TELEVISION

20 road games will be aired live on KPTV, Channel 12, this year. The televised games are indicated on the schedule below.

JIMMY JONES

For the 11th straight season, Jimmy Jones will handle play-by-play of Portland's 20 road games on KPTV, Channel 12. Jones doubles as public address announcer at the Trail Blazers' home games. A Shrine All Star game performer after his days as an all-city fullback at Portland's Grant High School, Jones also played three seasons at the University of Oregon. He has broadcast professional hockey and baseball and major college football and basketball — mingled in with track and field, boxing, motorcycle racing, golf, bowling, college wrestling and tennis. He is completing his 20th year with KPTV.

NOTES

©1980 Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc.

Who says the Toyota 4-Wheel Drive Truck is leading the off-road pack? OFF-ROAD and PICKUP, VAN & 4WD! Both magazines named it "4WD of the Year" when introduced!

They liked the 2.2 liter engine—more power than any other small 4WD! Highest running ground clearance. And the Toyota's high-riding good looks and fancy interior.

The Sport Truck model has locking front hubs, full carpeting, AM/FM stereo radio and full instrumentation—all standard.

Surprised that a new design could be so good so soon? Don't be. The Toyota 4-Wheel Drive Truck is the "Son of a Land Cruiser"—a Toyota Land Cruiser, that is.

So get a Toyota 4-Wheel Drive Truck. And lead 'em, off the road.

THE TOYOTA 4-WHEEL DRIVE TRUCK. IT'S LEADING EVERYONE OFF THE ROAD.
